

Document Management

Save time and money with Pythagoras' unique document management and an user-friendly web-based interface.

Are you in control?

There is a vast amount of documents associated with owning and maintaining a building or facility: financial documents, official documents and permits, blueprints and other types of document. If such information is spread over multiple documents and locations, getting an overview may be nearly impossible.

Are you in control of your documentation? Do you have a proper overview of your information?

All documents at your fingertips

Pythagoras enables you to organise your information according to the same geographical structure found in your buildings, all the way down to room level. Pythagoras document management characteristics:

- Web-based
- Independent of file format
- Automatically generated folder structure
- Versioning
- Check-in and check-out
- Integrated viewer

Getting an overview

Pythagoras gives you easy access to the information you need. All information in one place, with easy access for those with the proper user privileges!

Time-saver

By centralising all your information you can save both time and money throughout the organisation.
