

Continual Improvement and Change

We have the competence, the experience and the tools to help you with continual improvement and meeting your objectives.

Continuous development

We are all aware that we live in a time characterised by change and development, with ever growing competition. In order to stay competitive on the market, your organisation must continuously develop new structures, strategies, and ways of working. Costs must be minimised and revenues maximised.

What is your situation?

At your company, the space related costs are probably the highest after wages. We often meet the opinion that there isn't much to do about the costs for work facilities; "our premises are what they are". Through our customers, we at Pythagoras have learned that this is an obsolete opinion.

What is needed for change?

There is much that your organisation can do, using the right tools, the will, and the determination. It is no trivial task, but an extensive process, and it must be treated as such.

What support can we offer?

At Pythagoras, we are right behind you throughout the entire change process, and we often carry most of the load until you have made your decisions. We have the competence, the experience, and the tools to secure that the change lead to the established goals.

What's in it for you?

According to our experience, the potential for savings is typically at least 10%. How large is your potential?
